Kellogg Community College Electronic Journalism, B.S.

This bachelor's degree program is designed for the student seeking a career in the news industry. Students in this major learn how to research, write, shoot, edit and produce news stories for the electronic media (radio, television, and the WWW). Students are also prepared for leadership and responsibility through study of communication ethics and law. The coursework in this major is integrated with the daily "live" student produced newscast on WNMU-TV.
