

This Fall!

HIST 221 Architectural History: Late 19th Century to 1959

The styles and developments in architecture are chronicled from the late 1800s until 1959, paralleling the life of American architect Frank Lloyd Wright. His works will be compared and contrasted with the work of other architects of the same time period, both nationally and internationally.

Tuesdays and Thursdays
10 - 11:20 AM

This course can fulfill the Global Awareness Elective.

Taught by Professor and Licensed Architect, Douglas Mann.

HISTORY 222 Architectural History: Post World War II to Present

The styles and developments in architecture are chronicled from the period of time just prior to World War II until the present time. Modern American architects and their architecture will be compared and contrasted to those of the same time period internationally.

This course meets the Global Awareness general education requirement. HIST 221 is not required as a prerequisite for this course.

Tuesdays and Thursdays
10 - 11:20 AM

Taught by professor and licensed architect, Douglas Mann.
